Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Wednesday, August 24, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

My child, our bonds are timeless. They carry us through the ages, where our destinies are fulfilled. This is illustrated by the history of these messages, which will mark a long period of time in helping humanity in its tribulations. A century of wandering will be necessary to put it back into a salutary and decisive context for its evolution. As you can see, your perseverance in serving us and your efforts are not useless.

"Today's man, assailed from all sides and caught up in a web of information, does not devote the necessary time to what could serve as a springboard towards another level of consciousness. The elements will see to cleansing the situation by cutting it off, if necessary, from a consumer society that is aberrant and destructive beyond human imagination. Caught up in a whorl of life and comfort, they neglect essential values and enslave their bodies to an alleged easiness that hinders a natural balance; this has repercussions on all levels of being.

"In the current state of affairs, humans cannot backtrack; only necessity will manage to do this. When and how, we cannot currently say; many warning signs are appearing everywhere on Earth. Human beings attentive to these phenomena question themselves; they consider them as the hand of destiny in the face of the sad situation of this world. May our brothers and sisters detach themselves from frivolity and excesses associated with this world in order to always go further in the conquest of the world of the Spirit; this Spirit will not disappoint them. May all be enlightened and strengthened in their process."
