Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Monday, September 5, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Your heart aspires only to immolate itself in the brightly burning fires of divine love. Without this state of deep devotion, would you be fully available, as you are when listening to us? This privilege was bestowed on you in the current incarnation: to service according to His wishes. This propensity of a heart to love never remains unanswered; it manages to express itself, one way or another. The relevant means are countless. Whoever wants to serve finds their place in this world; there are very many opportunities for commitment. Our brothers and sisters have understood it and many of them spare no effort in dedicating themselves – according to their personal inclinations – to our Mission where people of goodwill are welcome.

"To serve with complete humility, isn't it a dedication on its own! This is where detachment is critical, in terms of moving away from the vanities of this world in which so many human beings let themselves be trapped. To serve is to also follow a path. The action offered is constructive if, and only if, one divests oneself of useless aspects. Nothing is simple here below where it is so easy to be caught in the devastating nets of illusion. So many men and women long to show off and shine, under the spotlight of an artificial glory that generally leads them to the greatest disappointments.

"Each one goes on their own path; all are enlightened through its most unexpected twists and turns. An incarnation offers a wide range of possibilities that are always instructive. May all our aspirants benefit from their incarnation and progress in the way, according to their wishes and ours."
