Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, September 8, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Love is the only flame capable of illuminating the world plagued by hatred and violence. Every reason is used for their justification: racial, religious, or most often having to do with self-interest. Given this devastating wave, we can only affix the seal of divine love, which men seem to ignore. What they consider as their own right is actually one of the darkest designs of the obscurantism that has been prevailing on Earth for too long.

"Currently in an ascending phase of its destiny, it will have to seize the opportunity to rise, or else perish. Many souls await their salvation; the conditions are met therefore for them to show their best. Their incarnation in these troubled times is a sign for them; the choices are theirs. May the reign of peace and harmony finally prevail in this world, and may all men be united in fraternity and respect for all that lives on this planet.

"It is not utopian to wish for these blessed times; humanity cannot remain eternally on the sidelines – compared to worlds that exist – by creating serious disturbances likely to destabilise the entire cosmic balance. The time has come to act at all levels; the fate of this world depends on this. May all people of common sense become aware of the current situation; time is pressing. We insist for the good of our aspirants, but also for all men, since without distinction they will have to compensate for the errors made by the multitude."
