Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, September 15, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

My child, you are not as deprived as you may believe. Your vocation is love; it is not very widespread among humans. This propensity to love brought you towards us, where it can be expressed in the vibratory current that corresponds to it. Nothing in this area is done without major reason; such was your destiny, which includes our special relationship and all the things that result from it through these lines.

"Showing where this kind of love can lead edifies our readers; many of them feel moved. There is no reason to conceal your states of soul from them. When they experience similar states, a communion of souls is thus created that is enlightening for all. These privileged moments, in a world astoundingly fraught with excesses of all sorts, bring a little peace and harmony to hearts ready to intensely experience them. To cultivate in oneself inalterable peace is a precious contribution to life, that which will not perish, neither in this world nor beyond.

"This prospect must remain inspiring for all those who follow us. Their commitment within our way favourably places them on a good path. May they be truly aware of this and work accordingly.

"The way is long and it is up to each one to be focused on what is essential; we can never insist enough on this point. On Earth it is easy to get distracted by letting oneself be taken in by the illusory game it offers. Any experience can be enlightening, provided one does not lose sight of the culmination of an incarnation. To follow the thread with faith and courage is the best warrant of success."
