Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Wednesday, October 26, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

When your time of oblivion, of beatitude, has come, what will become of your current torments? They will be lost in the mists of time, without any substance. Forget them and focus in the heart of the Immutable Peace, that which is not deceitful in its eternal truth. Go beyond this life; project yourself into this peace and you will then come out of it reinvigorated by the graces it provides. Follow your Master in spirit; travel in this way, my child. As for your spirit, it does not remain confined to this world of matter; every day you experience it, under his high guidance. Wherever he is, whatever he does, a connection is established between you, for reasons which are humanly beyond your understanding.

"Your mutual faith in authorities that are guiding your steps ensures that your personal abilities fit together and work wonders in this special context. Time will tell. On Earth, it takes a lot of time for anything being built on other vibratory levels to take shape. Surrender and faith are more appropriate than ever; so it is at all levels of the hierarchy. God, in His infinite greatness, expects from His creatures only this: submission – in the appropriate spirit – to serving His most elaborate plans which have motivated His choices.

"To serve entails that one's life is no longer one's own and that, in a way, one makes oneself available to deal with it. In this field, more than elsewhere, one should make choices that meet one's profound aspiration to devote oneself to service without any materialistic motive. Everyone's karma is full of opportunities to find fulfilment in keeping with one's personal capabilities. Many of our aspirants engage in service, keenly aware of this reality."
