Beloved Master

Your Master and yourself, in your respective ways and roles, are heroes. Although you have remained in the background from his incarnate person, your union on the plane of the Spirit bears abundant fruit. So many of our aspirants try to approach him in all possible ways to draw his attention to themselves. Such was never your case. Your destinies were bound together from the outset and were planned like that.

"In the future, your correspondence will be thoroughly dissected and studied by our brothers and sisters. They will try to understand its deeper meaning and will not neglect the least detail of it. Times change, and people's minds, by force of circumstance, open out. All that seems confused today will be clear tomorrow, in the light of great upheavals that will change humanity in its subtle essence. Without this external assistance, it would not achieve this change; too many aspects are at stake in this extraordinary epic – one which will be taken into account by the cosmic memory. Draining its cup to the last dregs, that is what this world is exposed to in an irreversible way. This does not hinder, in any way, the growth of many human beings who understand the way they have to follow.

"Whatever the approach of the seeker, his ardour and sincerity are major assets; an inspired line of conduct centred on what is good and on respect for others, can only correspond to the spirit required for this unprecedented change.

"May our abhyasis be motivated and become, through the power of their practice, more united than ever in this masterly climb towards bliss. All our wishes accompany them towards this prospect."
