Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

The history of these messages is also a beautiful love story, which our brothers and sisters, in the future, will remember. Without this dimension would this profusion of written pages exist, capable of fostering a spiritual progress by breathing new life into it? In a quest of this kind, elements having the ability to touch hearts are critical and none of them should be neglected. It seems to us that all topics that refer to essential points have been covered; these writings will follow their own path as planned, as they will be physically made available to each of our aspirants. The most beautiful stories come to an end as far as their text is concerned, however heart-to-heart bonds will live on. Neither time, nor space is relevant in this matter. My child, the day these messages cease, our love story will still remain. Your heart is not weary of keeping this precious relationship with ours alive. Give it a free hand in this respect; we have no doubt about its fervour or its perseverance in loving us. Our faithful aspirants also know how to cultivate this characteristic that generates a rare essence – impalpable and redeeming – which provides this humanity with what it is lacking so much at this stage of its evolution.

"We can only foster such a commitment that is in line with our dearest wishes. These messages represent for our Mission a subtle bond between all our abhyasis and the world of the Spirit, through the divine heart of the incarnate Master, trustee of our powers in this world."
