Tuesday, June 8, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

You believed that we would not go beyond the first collection, that it was all said. Yet, we have developed a certain number of ideas in the second one. The truth is very simple, do not forget it, but one needs so many words, colourful explanations to strike your neurons—your heart needs emotions, your mind needs formulas which strike it—that it is necessary to revert to the same issues indefinitely.

"Your small group, which thrives on these messages, is progressing quickly. Interesting signs can be observed in each [of you]. You are assimilating all that rather finely. We are satisfied with your reactions. They show that, on good soils, the majority of seeds sown yield a good harvest. You are to some extent our guinea pigs since you are the first to benefit from them. We observe you and we are happy with your reactions. Each one of you assimilates according to your true nature. Given what you are expressing, as well as the impact on your condition, we will continue for some time.

"It will be about a revision, a refresher process of what we consider as essential for your spiritual development. Unlike your brothers and sisters, you don't have the possibility of being often with my son; don't believe you are forgotten. I met my revered Master only a very few number of times. Distances don't mean anything to us. You belong to a large body, supplied with the same blood. Distance does not make any difference. The work is done where and when it must be done. Never have a feeling of frustration; it is negative and useless. You all bathe in the same subtle energy; no cell of this large body is left out. The least of these small cells is as dear to our heart as organs deemed important. You all are important; all together you are advancing under our tender eye."

Babuji