Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Wednesday, January 25, 2006 – 10:00 a.m.

The Mission's future is taking shape. Times are changing and energies are fluctuating before completely stabilising and marking the new era with the divine seal, according to its prerogatives. Men will have to adapt themselves, and our aspirants will have to get into the path of evolution with more discernment and fervour to benefit from the best of it. To prepare people in this direction entails not only working for our brothers and sisters, but also for humanity as a whole. All of humanity, without exception, is concerned in this matter, with more or less receptivity and open-mindedness, according to everyone's own level.

"The task is colossal, but to God nothing is impossible. At the required moment, all forces will rally and act where and when needed. Our way will not be outdone; its advent in this world was planned in this direction. Time does not matter. It can seem long to men, but God's plans prevail in accordance with very strict and irreversible laws. Our Mission is part and parcel of this plan; our Revered Great-Master Lalaji was its initiator. He continues to pay attention to it and support this Chosen Son – the Master of all of you – in his heavy duties, given the expansion of the Mission in the world. He is, at the same time, the soul and the brain, the incarnate divine power in a man of his time, perfectly in phase with the realities of the present life. His successor must have strong shoulders, rigour and perceptiveness to ensure that our way keeps its initial originality, without which it would get stuck on risky roads. It is and must precisely remain what it is. All our blessings go towards this blessed son, as well as to his successor. The future will have him hard at work; this is how the destiny of our Mission goes."
