Thursday, June 10, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

Your body is a wonderful tool which we are using for your advancement. You are no longer in revolt, and you understand our reasons. Each one has one's path: more or less testing according to where one stands and where one wants to go. Your path is not easy, but you chose it. Don't worry; all is well for you. You have a genius for moving us. We know who you are really and we love you. Humans have blinkers; their feelings are changing. They are caught by life; there is nothing definitive and sure with them. Here, such is not the case. Do not fear anything, we will not abandon you. Do not worry about the future; trust in the divine Providence and in the sincere people who will turn up until the end to help you. The disorder in which this treatment plunges you does not encourage you to see life through rose-tinted glasses. If you do not feel like doing it yourself, have the messages reread for you. The vibration emanating from them will help you and you will feel closer to me."

Babuji