Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, December 21, 2006 – 10:00 a.m.

Our Mission must be structured so that no aspect of its fundamental building blocks should be changed, however little it may be – this is of foremost importance. The talks in Bangalore set a precedent and will remain in people's memories as an event meant to better establish philosophical positions.

"May these meetings be maintained in the future, fostering the emergence of a new spirit in line with the evolution of the time and consequently [benefiting] our mystical movement. Its place in the world of men is getting ever more solid, without departing from the initial spirit.

"My son, this initiative is fruitful. It goes in the desired direction: the Mission must be firmly established in terms of its various aspects, including the broadmindedness of members vested with some duties within our organisation. Through these gatherings, you are showing insight – for which, we congratulate you. These men and women are motivated by good feelings. May they favourably express them throughout these days, thus creating harmonious relations between all the participants, and establishing solid ties for the good of all. May they be blessed. As for you, my son, you have our unfailing support and the best of our love; please spare yourself. We assist you in the best possible way."
