Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Friday, February 23, 2007 – 4:00 p.m.

The Medium: "The force of your hearts carries mine into an endless world devoted to divine splendour, setting ablaze souls dedicated to honouring it. This incarnation – it seems – had no other purpose than this: listening to both of you and being inspired by your respective greatness."

whole life prepared us for what we are today; such was our destiny, my dear sister. Being in the service of the divine forces is a grace, for which it should unceasingly give thanks. Now, you know what surrender is – as you are actually experiencing it. This word connotes many facets, but its reality is so badly understood and lived, in particular. Achieving it is real progress."

"Until the end, an incarnation keeps its mystery; this is how divine laws are. No matter what may happen, the concept of surrender must remain paramount and confidence must not wane. What is planned is necessarily accomplished; this is in the nature of things. My daughter, your Master has long mastered completely all these principles; this is the characteristic of a spiritual guide highly elevated, as is the case for my son. Happy are those who follow him and trust him. Such an encounter influences a life very deeply. The majority of our abhyasis are fully aware of this; the others, be that as it may, benefit from his work and their own regular practice. May the time come soon for liberation and an effective spiritual blooming for all beings living on this Earth. Let us continue working in this direction with ardour; God is great in his works."

"Once again, we can only conclude by praising Him who is 'everything', for us. Uniting with the divine heart of our Beloved is perpetual rapture. We can only listen to him as we are enthralled by what emanates from Him – unique and great – which produces in us, each time, the same unique feeling of wonder. This is how it is; loving him is our vocation."
