Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Thursday, September 27, 2007 – 4:00 p.m.

The kingdom of the Spirit conceals secrets, which man cannot fathom. Lush, creative, its subtle energy would disconcert the most informed seekers of this planet Earth, who are so far from the realities offered by it. How will tomorrow's man be able to apprehend the truth? His mind will need to open up and not neglect the hints aimed at helping him to access it. He will be able to seize, to some extent, this extrasensory dimension that will clear his way to knowledge. Distraught, disconcerted, he will have to adapt without any preconceived ideas, leaving behind all that he imagined within the narrow limits of his view of things.

"His following a spiritual way will enable him to get used to it and perceive the subtleties of a system beyond the scope of his current comprehension. Our way is a forerunner; it prepares our aspirants for a future change of dimension of consciousness which tomorrow's man will have to cope with, on pain of regressing irremediably.

"Humanity must rectify its trajectory and advance in the right direction. Nothing will happen without difficulty; how could it be otherwise? Precisely speaking, the confrontation between good and evil will be epic, and constructive in the end.

"May the time of the transcendence of the Spirit come soon – it will ennoble the souls that are marked with the divine seal."
