Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Saturday, September 29, 2007 – 10:00 a.m.

You have come a long way through the twists and turns of the spirit, and you have tuned in to us, day after day, with greatest steadfastness. Without this steadfastness, nothing would be possible. The very principle of divine service lies there, through perseverance and surrender to this unequalled power.

"Each movement of life on Earth operates under the effects of this force. Slowly but surely, this force carries on its ceaseless struggles to make life prevail. Its work is spectacular; limited by his smallness, man can only perceive a negligible part of it.

"Being a spectator, dazzled by what he can see, he happens to linger, amazed and won over. Is he sufficiently aware of what surrounds him? How could he; he is himself only a modest element of this imposing manifestation. All creation is one, indivisible and coherent in its principle. Does man, supposedly more evolved, respect what exists in this world? Is he aware of his unity? How could he be? This state of consciousness, precisely, must change. Once he has reached that stage, he can only progress on pain of regressing definitively. May all of humanity reach its peak!"
