Whispers from The Brighter World
A Fifth Revelation

Friday, November 9, 2007 – 10:00 a.m.

After all these years devoted to writing these pages very diligently, you are not really aware of the providential manna they represent. Your rereading of the old ones makes you start to realise it. Only time will give it its true dimension. It will be analysed and commented on in the future; these remarks may seem amazing today, but anything divinely inspired cannot disappear without a trace. This is an edifying teaching in its simplicity of approach, of which all of you who currently benefit from it cannot assess its importance. It touches the being's essence; it depends on all of you to apply your sensitivity effectively to appreciate them at their true worth.

"We have said it time and again, and we revert to it this time now: we encourage all of you to not neglect what these messages represent for our Mission.

"We do insist for the last time, it is up to all of you to feel concerned about their value and to respect this, as is proper. It is up to you to see.

"That is the way it goes. Blessings to all."
