Do not assume that all had been said. This contact is a soul encounter and you should not turn it down. These few written lines show it; they have their raison d'être, no matter what you may think. Humans constantly need innovation, stimulation, or else they find their life monotonous and uninteresting. These characteristics stem from a great emptiness, linked to the need of the spiritual being who is ignored, unsatisfied in terms of his inclination to love and to unite with the Divine. Once our faithful aspirants are fulfilled from this point of view, their lives should, if not totally satisfy them, at least provide them with the necessary balance to cope with the vagaries of life on this Earth as best they can.

"Nothing is simple or easy here below. The University of Life is often pitiless, but how else could it manage to strengthen mankind and ensure that they seek the truth beyond an incarnation that is transitory and fleeting in essence.

"There would be much to say on this issue, but how could one make the majority of human beings accept such comments, when they cannot see beyond the current moment. May we enlighten some of them; such is our objective."
