Whispers from The Brighter World

A Fifth Revelation

Sunday, September 28, 2008 – 10:30 a.m.

My very dear son,

"Your road is glorious, but difficult. We are close to you at each step, without being able to lighten your burden, with respect to this kind of physical failure. You are courageous and tenacious; nothing will be able to weaken the great things you are achieving for divine service.

"Your powers have increased tenfold, as was the case for few of the Masters before you; be thankful for that, my very dear Parthasarathi. At every moment we are by your side. We carry you in our own way without taking our eyes off of you for a moment, as we would do for a babe-in-arms particularly dear to our hearts. Your star is shining in the firmament; it will defy time. May that hearten you. We know that you do not lack courage; you display the relentlessness of the greats in carrying through their mandate.

"May this state of your vision stabilise, then improve as we hope for. This is our dearest wish for our so very blessed son.

"We love you beyond words; be strengthened and reassured."
