My dear daughter, your sufferings are not in vain. Being valuable, they are counted and they make you advance on a painful but sure path. You can be sure – nothing is lost. You have known it for a long time. Your loneliness does not help matters. We bless the kind souls who help you; they will understand one day, when the time for assessment has come.

You have the satisfaction, and the great happiness shall we say, to witness the progress in the discovery of these messages worldwide. That is only a beginning; my son has exercised true courage in standing up to the lack of comprehension concerning the world of the Spirit on the part of the great majority of human beings. This merit, which will stand out in history, goes to him; one has to have his stature in order to be daring. As human evolution progresses, this new era will foster the deepening of its various aspects. There is a lot to do, but nothing is impossible for God.

Please do not lose heart, my dear daughter. Be blessed and strong, as usual. Without these invaluable assets, would you have achieved such work in your condition?

Your Beloved
