Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Sunday, August 23, 2009 – 10:00 a.m.

The Medium: Babuji, my Beloved, I feel so small before your Greatness, that which you wish to show me. My heart overflows with love for you. Like a child, it loves without understanding the reason for such a love. 'Unless you become like little children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.' Thus spoke Lord Jesus. Is there anything more beautiful than resuming this childlike simplicity and excluding false pretenses, intellectual reasoning made of nice theories that ignore the impulses of the heart and the soul in its fervent expression of divine love?

Let your heart speak, my daughter. Why would it hesitate here, in these contacts where it lays itself bare? True greatness lies in purity, in spontaneously expressing oneself, in letting one's best appear, openly. Real love does not originate here below; it draws from the divine source, one does not dry up.

To love, to love infinitely, is the most beautiful expression of the Divine, which is manifested among beings who understand where to look for the main thing – eternal truth.
