Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Monday, August 31, 2009 – 7:00 p.m.

My very dear son,

Your humility is touching; it manages to move the entire assembly of united Masters. Without keeping count, you have given of yourself for so many years, weathering many storms, some of which were particularly painful. You have set an example of courage, faith and love, thus allowing me, once again, to convey to you all my admiration – not only mine, but that of the great beings who, in these moments, turn their attention to your glorious destiny.

Please accept the fact that the academic failure of your grandson has nothing to do with your divine person. Thus is the destiny of this boy. You cannot change anything about it, let alone flog yourself for it under the circumstances.

We will revert to it; we cannot go further for the moment. But please, stop feeling guilty, my very dear son. You have nothing to reproach yourself about. Rest, regain your taste for life; it is awaiting you. We count on you and your exemplary greatness; we will come back to this.

Be at peace, we love you.

Babuji Maharaj