Sunday, September 6, 2009 – 10:00 a.m.

The Medium:
You are my heart, you are my soul, O my Beloved!
You live in it and you sustain this blazing flame, the only one capable of maintaining in me the necessary energy to fight. Discreetly and serenely, you brought me to my Master's feet, knowing that this tendency to love, to love him through your divine heart, would bloom one day. Thus, 'what must be will be'; such is the situation once again, in line with this maxim repeated throughout the messages.

To find one's Master again is, in a way, to achieve the goal. Thereafter, another space is opened where, guided by the power of his action, spiritual life takes on a very different direction. To love in this way distils a subtle energy in the heart, one that is humanly indefinable, since it is beyond comprehension. This propensity to love cannot be explained. Experiencing it intensely is a constant blessing. At this level, living on love should be enough and should meet any other need. Certain beings here below have had this privilege[5], and their story is moving and edifying. There too, it shows that 'for God, nothing is impossible'.

---

[5] e.g. to no longer take food

Do not withdraw this writing, why shouldn't my son read it?

Babuji