Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Monday, December 7, 2009 – 10:00 a.m.

My daughter, writing this second collection in such a short time period – a kind of will of the heart – is an amazing feat, given your health condition.

You do not change: your heart remains vigilant and it overflows with love; hence these passionate lines. Keep up this fervour. This world needs it, in order to go in the right direction for the evolution of beings. These writings will be appreciated. By publishing the 'Messages', my son opened a door. We repeat that he was courageous to do it.

Our comments have made their way into people's minds, but also into their hearts. Some who were impervious to these practices have opened their eyes and come to enjoy these publications. Their discoveries are not over yet; many writings remain to be published and will surely surprise them. The way is now open and that makes us happy. Our Mission fulfils its role, which is not about leaving our aspirants in a state of ignorance, but familiarising them with a reality completely beyond Earthlings but which will catch up with them sooner or later.

We are moving in that direction.

What you have written, my daughter, highlights another aspect of what can be experienced by a heart eager to love. It is therefore welcome in our literature, shall we say.

My son has understood this well. Don't his prerogatives include the need to contribute to the enlightenment of humanity?

Blessings to all.
