Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Saturday, June 5, 2010 – 10:00 a.m.

My daughter, you are participating in this great movement where our hearts are involved in a noble purpose: to help suffering humanity. Blessed are those who understand this necessity; it is becoming increasingly obvious. Our brothers and sisters will have to change their vision of the world with eagerness, by visualising it in motion towards a profound and redeeming transformation. Nothing is impossible. The creative power of thought is a reality that is still poorly understood in these times of obscurantism. Such will not always be the case. All of us here are working towards better times by permeating hearts that are receptive to our comments. This world must change; it is on the road to ruin. Towards what objective does it advance? Profit, in all its forms. Is there a noble purpose behind all this?

All our brothers and sisters are moving forward. They are, each one of them, advancing at their own pace, and it is heartening to see this as well as the impact produced in them by these messages.
