My very dear Parthasarathi,

My heart had not expressed itself here for such a long time; it is now imperative that it does so. The one who was your mother, and then your disciple, is concerned by your condition. You need to respond to this incident and overcome it. It highlights the need for a new choice, one suited to the importance of this Mission that we hold so close to our hearts. For the time being, you must continue to take the reins of the Mission. A new orientation must be given to it; you will be inspired accordingly. As the highly Revered Babuji Maharaj told you, 'It all had to be like that'; a different organisational structure has to be put in place to further this large-scale spiritual mission within a broader movement able to change the world.

You have nothing to reproach yourself with. Please, my son, show me your ability to get back on your feet once again, for the better, as you usually do so well.

I am close to you every moment. May my love inspire and strengthen you.

Janaki
