Birthday of Parthasarathi Maharaj

Our dear and great son,
You should lead your current life to the fullest before proceeding to the next step in the kingdom of heaven. First and foremost, you have to put in place what needs to be established [in terms of restructuring the Mission] and assign everyone a role that suits them; this is imperative.

This birth anniversary, once again, is important in our Mission in many respects. Blessed are those around you who manage to overcome their egos and act for the good of the Mission and not for their own. In this regard, you set an example for them, my son; hence your greatness. Small human pettiness should in no way disrupt the smooth running of our Mission. You will have to make important decisions; they are imperative in these periods of turbulence. May serenity and calm once again suffuse your heart and lift it ever closer to ours, where your true refuge lies. It is not misleading: it couldn't be more right. The divine laws manifest themselves therein, without fail. This perspective reassures you – you, the blessed son among all. May grace suffuse your soul and overcome it in these moments of communion with ours, and may the power of our united hearts inspire you with strength and divine life to the highest degree.

Let this birthday celebration be unique and decisive for you and for what remains to be accomplished here on Earth. This is what we wish above all.

From your Master, loving and attentive to your heart more than ever – be at peace, won't you? Such is our desire for you, with our keenest wishes for the best.

To you, dear Parthasarathi,

Babuji
