Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Sunday, December 19, 2010 – 10:00 a.m.

After all these years, your heart is nourished by the blessings it receives, and it feels the need to express itself as you have done, with our approval, in this little diary.

Many souls are suffering from the ugliness and absurdity that characterise this world. Fervent hearts find the appropriate refuge: a spiritual path that suits them according to their origin and their social environment. Many human beings are suffering; they lack the essential thing that will give meaning to a life filled with trials of every kind. Blessed are those who find a suitable path that makes them grow in wisdom.

Perfection is not of this world, as we have already said. The path that leads to it is long and difficult. The main thing is to embark on it, affording oneself pauses that can be devoted to the best in oneself. May all our aspirants be fulfilled on their path.

May they be blessed!
