Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Saturday, September 3, 2011 – 10:00 a.m.

You know the refuge; without it, what would your life be? You have never been spared trials in your life, and yet they have strengthened your heart, giving meaning to the spiritual journey that embellishes an incarnation.

This quest is carried over from one lifetime to the next, necessarily. The soul has its own sacred requirements in this area, which should be met.

Blessed are those who follow the path leading them to the shores where their thirst for the Divine can be quenched. There they find the true meaning of a lifetime, one often confronted with difficulties of all kinds.

A true spiritual journey makes a person understand the need for all the trials he or she must endure. No one is spared; sooner or later karma manifests itself, without fail.

May our way help all our brothers and sisters as best as possible on this difficult path of life. We support them in an appropriate manner; it is not always easy for them to understand, but that is the way it goes. The result of their spiritual quest will be proportional to their commitment; it is in the order of things.
