Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Sunday, September 4, 2011 – 10:00 a.m.

Life is not a bed of roses; each day brings its share of diversity and marks the path of the being. It is shaped by fate: all is foretold, useful and necessary to each and every one for their personal development. When human beings open themselves to this reality, they begin to grasp the true meaning of an incarnation. Many incarnations mark out this process; one learns and shapes oneself until an acceptable level of achievement is reached. We revert once again to these very simple facts: it is not always easy to accept the burden of destiny. No one can change anything about it. Humanity must change and realise how precarious life on Earth is and how all is fleeting, time being precious for one's fulfilment under the laws of evolution.

Such laws cannot be ignored. From one lifetime to the next, the real being develops – the being who aspires to the union of the soul with the supreme power that propels one towards the spheres of unalterable beauty. Human beings are not always aware of this journey. When they do become aware, they seek the best way to access planes of consciousness capable of fostering their evolution. When they have awakened to this need, they begin to have an inkling of the higher reality, its complexity, and how they need to be fully committed in order to go beyond the world of matter.

The struggle is hard; the higher summits require unremitting efforts for one to advance towards them. Nothing discourages a true mystic. Such a one is driven by deep faith, which imparts the strength to overcome and to succeed. We support such undertakings; they are the real aim of life. Blessed are those who really understand this and commit themselves to it.
