We too went through moments of great fatigue when we were disconcerted by human reactions. Do not lose heart, my daughter. Whatever the current barriers that many abhyasis may face in accessing these messages – book prices, lack of access to modern means of communication – these messages imperceptibly touch people who cannot but share the effects with others.

We would like everyone to benefit from these readings, hence the means of dissemination implemented by my son. The thirst for the Divine is growing in people's hearts. It gradually awakens in them a greater yearning to rise. These writings are helping many of our aspirants. Here, we are able to measure their effects and would like all to benefit from them, individually or in groups.

Let time do its work; it is the supreme element in many situations on this Earth. Humans advance slowly, according to the rhythm of life. The cycle of nature is an example of this. In many fields, it takes a year for it to be renewed. The cells in the human body also have their clearly defined and inescapable rules. Science has not yet managed to understand everything and to grasp natural phenomena. Divine laws are not accessible to it – quite fortunately, one could say. Here, as elsewhere, it is necessary to advance for the good of humans; this is happening in certain domains, both material and spiritual.

The future will reveal the ensuing effects. Humankind must grow in many respects, and spirituality will be decisive for it. A lot of work is at stake, and time is running out. So let us work for the good of all with the means at our disposal in this 'way of the heart' accessible to all.
