Whispers from The Brighter World
A Sixth Revelation

Saturday, February 11, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

In spite of your great fatigue, your full readiness of heart is such that you go beyond this tiredness to serve us, my dear daughter. Janaki is very happy to have given this message to her beloved son. To him, she is better than a guardian angel: she is the one who gave birth to him and always kept watch over him here below with so much love and attention. She makes herself light and as discreet as one can be in such circumstances. A very special love binds their two hearts; that is how it goes in some cases where souls meet again and follow each other wherever they are for good and noble reasons.

Isn't it beautiful to see how true love is everlasting! You know something about this yourself; you experience it differently, but with a unique perspective – one of serving and loving beyond Earthly bonds. Is this not a great solace to you, my daughter? Do not lose heart or be too affected by the suspension of the readings of these messages [in Montpellier]. They are making their way and will continue to do so in spite of everything.
