Many great enlightened beings mark a period with their influence and do not necessarily leave a perpetual teaching nor disciples. Yes, Ramakrishna protects the Mission as Vivekananda has told you, which he does himself.

"My child, say it, say it always—this leitmotiv 'My God, I love You' is not likely to bore Him. In certain countries, you would be called 'she who loves God'."

The Medium: "That's right, Babuji, that's all I have to offer, the precious stone He put in my heart and which is called 'love' is for Him."

"Make sure that this sparkling precious stone, with a thousand facets, does not remain invisible. Open the jewel case that conceals it; pure hearts will see it."

The Medium: "My God, thank you for all that You give me; forgive my complaining. Only litanies should emanate from my mouth to express my gratitude to You."

"Rest as much as possible, we love you."
