Whispers from The Brighter World

My dear daughter, have faith in life, in that which never ends, in this sacred capital, especially when it concerns an exceptional Being. 'Doesn't everything have its raison d'être?' My son is suffering in his body but his soul is enraptured. We support him in our own way; he is the Chosen One of our united hearts. No living Master is spared, as is amply evidenced by precedents; so will it be always. Remain confident for him and for yourself through this difficult period. You are doing your best, tuning in to us; is it not the main thing at this moment! Forget your torments for each and every being you care about; you cannot fix everything concerning your loved ones. That is life; it is not easy for anyone, even if it seems lighter for some people.

"Look towards this birth anniversary. It is far beyond the human person of our beloved son; it is a key moment in our Mission, just like the birth anniversaries of his predecessors. Be at peace, you should put up with this testing body out of love for us and prepare yourself as best you can to accommodate inside you the magnificent manifestation of this union of hearts, a testimony to the love inspired by the greatness of our beloved son, your Master. He is the central axis of convergence of your thoughts and all the love expressed here in the secrecy of your heart. All is good like that."
