My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, July 23, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

My dearest son:

"This day is unique: it heralds your birthday anniversary tomorrow. This moment is very special in our Mission, as we have extensively underlined in previous messages this year. Your greatness justifies these repetitions. Your physical body is in pain, but your soul is sparkling. You have reached the stage which the very Great refer to as 'the heavenly apotheosis'. The day you come and rejoin us, you will be welcomed in a way you cannot imagine. Chosen prince of our hearts, your place among us will be a special one. My beloved son, regain serenity, as far as possible. May you be treated with extreme care through the difficult time you are experiencing. We are surrounding you in our own way; is it a comfort to you? Once again these lines will show you that we are actually by your side. We would appreciate it if, in the immediate future, all of the messages referring to these holy days, which we have commented on several times, are released — all of them — to our brothers and sisters whose thoughts keep focusing on you. What else can we tell you: you are so precious, so unique to us, we cherish your divine heart. As we emphasised in an earlier message, in spite of your present suffering, your soul is exulting as it has rarely done. You see, my son, what is happening here is very different from that which is in the world of matter.

"May all these messages about you — referring to your birthday anniversary — be known to all in real time, and above all may they bring you a moment of peace. Our love carries you continually, believe me."

Babuji Maharaj