My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, July 27, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

The Mission is at a turning point in its history; we will revert to this aspect of things later on. My son is suffering, that is our greatest concern. We are helping him in our own way, but the physical body of a high level Master is not spared; we experienced it ourselves. May he be surrounded as is proper, and he should not be unnecessarily subjected to inappropriate treatment. He only aspires to rejoin us, which we do understand. He is reassured now concerning the future of this great spiritual way in which, no matter what, he will leave his mark for the remainder of time. We do and act as best as possible when needed. When he rejoins us, he will take a well-deserved rest.

"His successor will have much to do; we will help him, but he will have to work very hard and should not tolerate any of the perversions that are likely to occur. That moment will be difficult for the Mission and for him — this is inevitable at the human level. The Mission will then have to carry on under the guidance of the Masters. Under their constant blessings, the future Chosen one of Sahaj Marg Mission will breathe a new impetus into it, and it will be followed by all true, sincere and faithful devotees. The latter are there. Following the great Parthasarathi and honouring him through sustained action will lead the people to moving on with fervour and tenacity against all odds. Blessed are they.

"Our beloved son is under our higher attention; all is well for him."

Babuji Maharaj