My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, August 1st, 2012 - 10:00 a.m.

'What must be will be.' All our brothers and sisters should truly ponder over this motto. Circumventing the will of the living Master and all of us is a serious violation. Loving one's Master and respecting him also entails – above all – accepting his choices; they result from a consensus among the higher and divinised figures that are responsible for this extraordinary way. Splits are regrettable; they are very dangerous manifestations of the ego by thoughtless people. It is very sad to read it in the hearts when all should turn to their beloved Master and send him thoughts of love and express their respect for him and his highly inspired decisions.

"We will not dwell on this issue any further: the impudent people concerned will recognise themselves. Let us revert to the beautiful, the elevation of souls of the vast majority of our brothers and sisters who are fully committed at all levels. A spiritual way like ours is a divine gift; the pure of heart can sense it and are grateful, in a state of utmost respect, for the divine laws manifested on Earth for the greatest good of men. Our responsibility is to highlight human weaknesses so that our brothers and sisters can become aware of the implications of an infringement of the established laws. May they all open their eyes and not fritter away the exceptional benefits offered to them in this way of the heart. It is a gift to humanity and especially a grace for all those who follow this way with gratitude and honesty.

"Special blessings."

Babuji Maharaj