My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, August 13, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

We admire our beloved son, your Master. Despite his ordeal, he is managing this great Sahaj Marg Mission as best as possible. He has always managed to face up to human turbulences and life with all its related good and not so good aspects, even in an organisation like ours where nothing is simple.

"Our brothers and sisters, however spiritually committed they are, have their own personalities and tendencies that may resurface when you least expect them. Thus is life. Remaining united in his wake with one's heart surrendered and generous is the hallmark of true abhyasis who are faithful and genuinely committed. They contribute to the greatness of the Mission. The latter is charting its course; hearts are opening up, and in these pivotal moments, they will become more and more aware of the opportunity to act for the good, and for everyone in this great movement which is offered to today's men and women. It is up to the greatest number to become aware of this reality; time is running short and what is lost cannot be made up. In this difficult time for our beloved son, we wish everyone to regain their self-control in the face of the fluctuations of life, to see far ahead and think in a larger way for themselves and for this Mission that is so dear to our hearts.

"Each of the previous Masters was completely devoted, which is the case for the great Parthasarathi. Our love uplifts him to the zenith. May all our abhyasis follow him with fervour, and respect his decisions in this state of love that binds Master and disciple; it is a love unique in its principle.

"Best to all."

Babuji Maharaj