These messages touch many hearts and help them in their everyday lives. Isn't this a wonderful result, and one that is likely to motivate us here? The spiritual impact of the messages can be significant, otherwise why would they be given! Nothing should be overlooked in such an approach.

Today's humans live in a disturbing environment where they are affected by so many types of pollution, most of which are undetectable. That is the price of this so-called modern life with its achievements in high technology – achievements that we take advantage of here. This is worth emphasising. This means of communication [high-technology] is a significant element in our Mission, even if we lament the negative impact of its pollution on human beings. We can do nothing but admit the facts and take advantage in our own way of what is available today; tomorrow, we will see. Our purpose here is to reach the largest number of our brothers and sisters and to help them lead their lives, progress and have an inkling of what a spiritual journey can offer beyond materiality.

An incarnation is short compared to the long journey of the soul in the Spirit world. The Spirit world opens up new horizons of which so many people are unaware. Some civilisations that are more sensitive than others to this aspect of life have always emphasised the importance of acting accordingly and ensuring that what contributes to the elevation of the subtle being is not neglected. Our way offers many possibilities; it is up to each person to seize this opportunity and advance as best they can according to their personal request.
