Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, August 31, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

Are our brothers and sisters aware of the load of a spiritual Master? It does not seem so. His duties extend well beyond this world. Such a commitment is total; leading a Mission of this scale, as he is doing, requires a number of qualities in addition to those of the spiritual dimension. Sahaj Marg is growing and expanding across the world and it has only just begun. The Mission must be structured and strengthened at all levels and — especially — our brothers and sisters committed to service should refrain from developing an oversized ego. It does not serve our way at all — quite the opposite — and deeply harms their advancement.

"Everyone is trying to do their best, but there are the manifestations of character. It is advisable to keep them in check and to ensure that certain behaviours do not hinder what is essential to their spiritual journey. Respect for the Master should prevail; faith and commitment are essential to overcome the many aspects discussed here. We trust all these people who are committed. We are helping them in more than one way and we make sure that everyone finds personal fulfilment in this long journey towards the goal. A spiritual Master must be respected, revered and loved in the most noble and the most beautiful manner possible. May everyone realise how our attention towards each brother and sister is great in every respect. May all our brothers and sisters advance in this way of love and divest themselves of anything useless."
