Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, September 8, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

These attentions towards you touch us; here is being accomplished that which must take place for our Mission, as the context is favourable in all respects. Your noting down of these messages is a very special commitment that requires selflessness and deep faith in our system. Love is the driving force of this very rare epic that is unfolding at this level; reasoning would not be enough. Only great strength like yours can steadfastly motivate a person. You are and will remain our chosen scribe. Do not feel embarrassed by these comments. 'What must be will be', that is how it goes. Every day you receive positive feedback about these messages. Blessed are those who enjoy them. They have by far a greater understanding than those who don't. We cannot force anything; human beings are as follows: under certain circumstances they need a lot of time to adapt to situations that they do not understand.

"The world is changing; a large majority of humans are evolving. Their minds are opening up to a reality largely neglected here below. The current time of obscurantism will end and give way to a broader and more accurate understanding of many aspects of life. It seems that for a long time everything has been done to keep man in ignorance of the many phenomena that characterise this world.

"Nevertheless, many people are opening up to this view of life in its highest sense. Life is one, and many; it does not end with one incarnation, and it manifests itself in other planes of consciousness. It is up to each one to understand and advance spiritually for one's own sake."
