Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, September 13, 2012 — 8:00 a.m.

Is there anything more beautiful than a fervent appeal to us emanating from a heart fully offered to us? Practice and discipline are of great importance, but this kind of love is essential; without it, this approach would not be the same. The heart is the supreme refuge; there lies the mystery of life in all its forms — material and, especially, spiritual. The heart is a sacred island where the miracles of the Spirit are accomplished. Our method focuses on this aspect of things. How could we overlook such an asset? But one must still be aware of it. Knowledge, in its current state, does not consider this important aspect of spirituality. An approach like the one we offer fully operates at this level; a day will come when the discovery of this reality will amaze people. A precursor — such is this path leading to the noblest of goals: the heart, this seat of the soul and which in many ways is still unknown to human beings, especially in this area that is so special for human evolution. The tasks of precursors have never been easy: they should not surprise or shock in advancing so many great truths that are still ignored in this current era. Gradually, open-minded people will awaken to this knowledge that is capable of revealing life in all its magnitude and its impact on different levels of consciousness, which is capable of producing, during these intervals, islets of vibrational purity and love. The teachings we provide here are followed on other planes of life; this is wonderful.

"To all our blessings."
