Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, September 28, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

To unite with the Divine during a day is a rare and privileged moment for a searching soul. This ritual is practised by all our brothers and sisters; each and every one devotes themselves to it in their own way and receives according to their personal aspirations. We cannot force anything, but answering a deep and sincere appeal is a part of our prerogatives. Many souls are opening up to the call of the Divine. They have this innate need in a world that is very disturbing at the human level. They feel the need to go beyond, to discover in themselves that which justifies an approach leading beings to purify themselves, to rise up to another spiritual condition — one that is capable of transforming their future. It is good to interiorise oneself, to seek within for what is most noble and pure and bring it to a satisfactory level of connection with the Ultimate.

Seeing beings rise and purify themselves through an appropriate approach fulfils all of us here, we who are listening to our aspirants whose numbers are increasing in the world. The Mission also affects other planes of consciousness, but this is another aspect of the impact generated by our method. Nevertheless, it is good to notice its effects.

This planet is said to be overpopulated; nothing takes place without reason. What is most important is the advancement of beings at this level in a world that is troubled in more ways than one, leading many people astray. Adjusting oneself to what is favourable for one's spiritual elevation is a sign of rallying with the forces of good. Working in this direction is a blessing here below and elsewhere. Many beings are involved in this battle; it is a large-scale one, as you say. It is up to each person to follow the impulses of his or her heart and be discriminating in this world which is restless and superficial in many respects. May all be guided and strengthened in their quest, under our highest blessings.

Following a living Master of this nature is not commonplace. May all our abhyasis become truly aware of it and take advantage of this opportunity offered to human beings of this time.
