Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, September 30, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

Seeing a soul bloom and attain bliss gives us great joy. Imagine a vast field of flowers where every day new buds open up to the light and thus express their joy to the Creator; this is the best sight ever, and it gives us more motivation than ever to work on hearts. A spiritual way like ours is a sound means; here we don't talk about miracles and we don't pretend to do any, but every day the best is accomplished for everyone, according to the aspirations of the soul and an unwavering determination to be projected onto the banks of the sacred.

"It all takes place in obscurity; rising to the light requires a lot of discretion and interiorisation, and dispositions that are conducive to a very important transformation. When a soul wins over this highly blessed space, it goes into raptures and thus signs the best of contracts. Bathing in this light, feeding on it and revelling in it offer to human beings this unique space, away from the negativity of a world that is plagued by unrestrained materialism in which nothing is respected. Blessed are those who, in the current context, manage to preserve what is essential and grant it, in the course of their day, these windows where the mind and the heart offer themselves to Divinity. Following such a way is a sign of wisdom; it is so easy to get caught up in the whirlwind of materiality where constraints lurk beneath attractive aspects. Giving one's time and opening up to the inner perception of the Divine bring about, through steadfast practice, the fruit of the sacred tree that is the dispenser of the treasures of the sovereign Spirit.

"To all we wish the sacred flame and the achievement of the Ultimate under our blessings."
