Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, October 4, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

Connected to the heart of the incarnate Master, the abhyasi follows the lead of the Spirit. Committed to his practice, he exhibits his best and gains control over a place reserved for seeking souls. The effectiveness of our method is a fact and over the years this has led the most fervent and regular abhyasis towards enchanted shores — those where jubilation is great. Some of them can attest to it; all possess this valuable asset and they are advancing towards the goal. There is nothing more rewarding than such a possession. It cannot perish with time nor deteriorate like most Earthly property.

"Everything changes and moves over time. This world of illusion is negligible compared to eternity. What is earned here below does not last; the essence of what the spiritual being benefits from is immutable. This kind of possession cannot be truly assessed on Earth; there is no scoring, no human estimation of it, except the one made by a high-level Master capable of assessing it in the beings around him. The door of the sacred is narrow; blessed are those who pass through it. All our abhyasis should have this as an objective. They are monitored and supported, although they are not aware of it. The result lies there, intangible and so precious on the journey of a soul towards the ultimate goal. Each soul progresses at its own pace and is helped according to its aspirations. All are advancing; we are working towards this happily and quickly. The results achieved in half a century are very significant, and we are very satisfied. To all we wish the best; our work in this area is continuous."
