Whispers from The Brighter World

Addressing a topic like humility is a vast endeavour. Enough references to this theme can be found in the messages; it is a good idea to use them. As you can see, these writings are beginning to inspire some of our brothers and sisters who are open to what we are offering. So will it be, more and more; this is only a beginning.

"These writings are the only [mediumistic] ones that should be regarded as authentic, although other writings coming from different sources will continue to flourish in our Mission. Imitation is not limited to this world below, it also happens here. This is to be considered, even if the intentions underlying these imitations are good.

"We have said it repeatedly: there are currently thousands of messages, some of which will surprise our aspirants. Several generations and beyond will probably be nurtured by them. As beings evolve, these messages will be better and better understood and accepted by all. In this world, it takes time to lead humans to assimilating certain truths. The truths being referred to here are important in our teachings in which they are being included over time. Blessed are those who understand and are advancing; for them this knowledge will bear promising fruit. We have no magic wand to make minds evolve to this level. Our teachings are whole and also include an opening to the world of the Spirit. Our aspirants will gradually be led to exploring these concepts; they must advance in knowledge since so many misconceptions have been spread about it. We have been striving here for a long time to bring our abhyasis in tune with this reality which is ignored by most human beings. This reality is slowly but surely becoming obvious by the force of circumstances and especially of events.

"This is how it goes."
