Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, October 11, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

We are not without resources, my daughter; have you not realised it over all these years when, through these messages, we have all expressed ourselves in our respective ways? There are still some more discoveries to be made by our readers regarding the source of these writings; this heavenly manna will take on its full worth in the future. As your dear Master stated some time ago, there is no precedent in history regarding the number of messages.

In this, you see, our Mission stands out, and not only that. Let's consider the facts here and now: in this world that is so troubled on all levels, the winning of hearts is a blessing — and it has only just begun. We are realistic; it is not easy to fully live a spiritual journey of this kind. Nevertheless, it requires a minimum of time, but time that no longer stands for the same values as those in present-day life, which is agitated and disruptive as far as energies are concerned. Interiorising oneself and rejuvenating oneself by inwardly seeking a balance that is conducive to inner communion leads the whole being to serenity. Medicine recognises this fact, and people's minds seem to be opening up. This observation demonstrates it, and yet this is only a superficial aspect. A true spiritual journey goes well beyond: quieting the physical body generates vibrations conducive to the blossoming of the soul. The soul's need is great, and its thirst for the Divine is permanent. Acting accordingly and communing inwardly with this unique expression is the best reward possible for a loving heart that is captivated by the unique benefits it receives in these blessed moments.

May all our brothers and sisters move further and further towards this understanding of the work that is taking place in them thanks to a process capable of connecting them to the heart of their divine Master, and capable of opening to them the doors of an Eden like no other.
