Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, October 14, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

My dear daughter, let yourself be carried away by this joy, one that brings beauty to the soul. It instils in you surges of love that are out of the ordinary. This day is special; many humans take a pause, they aspire to the Divine, and hearts that are touched by grace form a great wave of love. We soar over it and bless these beings who are in search of a rare energy, one that delights the soul. Why not let oneself be carried and won over by this peace, one that is immutable as it infuses so much grace and bliss.

True mystics sense our comments perfectly; they let themselves be carried away by this unparalleled state. It is so good to connect with the Divine in this way. With the soul at peace, and a blissful heart, the seeker tastes these unique moments when the world and its baseness are abolished. Within each person lies eternal peace, that which sends the being into rapture — the goal sought by any mystic. Many reach the highest level; all are advancing and gradually freeing themselves of their burdens. Each one has their own pace, according to their own aspirations — but what joy, what delight to reach the goal!

Our Mission operates accordingly and effectively for the greatest number. Humanity suffers from many evils. The paths that lead to the ultimate goal are unknown to so many men and women who reduce their Earthly existence to materiality. It is beautiful to see a soul access higher consciousness, that which frees it from the constraints imposed by materiality. May all access the best of their being where peace and love reign unfailingly.
