Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 20, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

The door is narrow, but the goal is worthwhile; it is the only valid goal and the reason why nothing should be spared in reaching it. How many struggles, trials and multiple experiences are the lot of all human beings! An evolutionary cycle is pursued from one incarnation to another; everything is counted and everything has its raison d'être. Human beings sometimes resent what life has in store for them; many of its effects are not easy to understand. Why endure this or that, they say. It takes wisdom to recognise ordeals as a necessity that everyone must undergo for many reasons transcending human understanding. Divine laws keep their mystery; here as elsewhere, humans have no choice. Shortening an incarnation solves nothing; that is the last thing one should do. Following an active spiritual way is a recourse capable of saving time, a lot of time when the commitment is total. Faith in this goal is paramount and yields the finest fruits.

"Seeing a soul blossoming, opening up to higher reality by going well beyond materiality, is the ultimate goal. The conquest of the sovereign spirit is the richest conquest; it presents the seeker with the greatest reward. This reward is an indescribable blessing which is difficult to assess in human terms, as it has no Earthly criterion for comparing. Isn't this sublime conquest a major asset? Relieving oneself of useless aspects is a major reason for the conquest. It is up to every one to consider, under our blessings."
