Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, November 7, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

There will always be something to say and, for the occasion, to write. Human beings have constant needs: their physical bodies require daily nourishment, and their minds – when they open up to the higher reality – are insatiable. Writings of this kind reassure the reader and open up vistas onto the Infinite. The heart becomes the receptacle of love, this very special energy capable of transcending matter. Thousands of messages have been given over the years; they are accumulating and will become a reference in this field. They will leave their mark on this spiritual way in a powerful manner such as our brothers and sisters cannot imagine today. The times ahead will be very hard for everyone; no one will be spared. Human beings, regardless of their material situation in this world, will have to face up to the raging elements – in this, all will be equal in the face of adversity. True values will emerge from this chaos. Faith in a promising elsewhere will be a major asset. We are trying to some extent to prepare people's minds for these future times. A teaching of this kind will endure and become an invaluable reference for many brothers and sisters who are sensitive to the voice of the heart – that which is trying, at any cost, to make itself heard by human beings.

In time, our Mission will go a long way; it will assert itself more and more, stripped of superfluous aspects. It will become a reference, a simple and effective way to advance and become stronger spiritually. Great opportunities are opening up to the seeker; fervent hearts will see the light and their thirst for the Divine will lead them to the source – the one that cannot dry up, since it emanates from the Divine.

That is the way it is.
