My Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, November 9, 2012 - 10 am

It is good to be able to express our love to our dearest Parthasarathi, our highly blessed son. We carry him in our own way; divine laws are such that no one can spare him the multiple troubles of his body of flesh. All this is not easy for humans to understand; the great Masters of all time were not spared. The underlying reasons cannot be explained here; thus is the reign of matter and no human being escapes it. Suffering here on Earth has always had a special connotation in such cases where the incarnate being carries an extraordinary spiritual charge. The law consists of accepting and feeding on graces provided by these special situations. For a Master of this stature, acceptance while suffering generates a second state that is redeeming not only for himself but also for the multitude. Doesn't everything have its raison d'être? Once again, this aspect of things is worth considering here.

"Man's view is very narrow; living in this world of illusion creates situations which he cannot comprehend. However evolved he may be, he stumbles against this barrier that is insurmountable when he is incarnate and limited to his bodily form. Being in a state of acceptance is a strong support; faith in that higher power opens up broad prospects. Blessed are those who undertake that inner journey that is spiritually enlightening and determining for the rest of their advancement. From life to life the unique treasure builds up. Those who choose our way have already sought one in the past; here they find what they need. It's up to them to act at their level. As for the rest, we do attend to it.

"This is how it is."

Babuji Maharaj