Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, November 14, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

Be surrendered and at peace, and let your heart be united with ours. Its call is never-ending and we hear it fully. Love is never too great or too strong when it is exercised at this level in a register where nothing is lost, but everything is transformed into positive energy, as is the case here. A true spiritual path is centred on this principle. Some of our followers need to focus on this fact: true love opens doors. It brings beauty to a soul and, by extension, to the aura of the Sahaj Marg Mission.

Baseness and power struggles cannot be tolerated in the Mission. May these comments generate a constant echo and bring some of our brothers and sisters back to more correct behaviour. Everything becomes known and is recorded in the ledger of time and its collective memories – nothing is forgotten. Good and evil are constant here below. May our Mission succeed in setting an example of tolerance and understanding towards one another and – what is especially concerning and essential for us here – respect for the choice of the Masters who are, or will be, in charge of this Mission because such is the higher will. Going against these choices and engaging in controversy is a serious matter; the repercussions are felt on all levels of consciousness. Respect these choices; do not become caught up in egotistical reactions that have no basis other than misplaced pride that is destructive for the people concerned – the past has sufficiently demonstrated the consequences of such acts.

May our comments awaken people's conscience and enable this Mission to advance in greatness, peace and unity among all our brothers and sisters, far from the infighting that is so regrettable. It's up to each one to consider and to act!
